A REGULAR CHILDREN'S SERVICE AT ST. MARY'S?

We are very conscious, at St. Mary's, that we are doing very little to reach families with young children in the village, of which there are a number. As a Benefice we are engaged in discussions about the possibility of admitting young children to communion before confirmation and this has prompted us to examine what we do for the young here. Any planning for future services more appropriate for young families must engage with the families in question. We want to know what you want and do not presume to organise worship that we think you may want.

Therefore, we have arranged for our Deanery Training Officer to come to St. Mary's on Sunday 5 August for our 9am service. The plan is that we will stay on for the rest of the morning, for coffee, discussion and a shared lunch, finishing about 12.30.

All our regular worshippers and anyone else interested, especially young families, are warmly invited to take part in this consultation and I sincerely hope you will be able to respond to this.

Father Edwin

Right up our Street!

What's in your freezer? Is it mainly home produce, rather than Mr. Tesco's? And when you come to eat it, do you wash it down with a nice glass or two of wine, preceded perhaps by a sherry, gin or vermouth?

That's what the market researchers say the villagers of Upton do, anyway. And a visit to www.upmystreet.co.uk will reveal lots of other intimate details of the life of the residents of OX11 9JB. We are classified as an 'Acorn Type 2' settlement — what a romantic ring!

An idyllic picture is painted of Uptonians (only a slip or two of the finger from Utopians, come to think of it) quietly sipping a post-prandial port, one of our favourite tipples, apparently, while the debris is dealt with by the new dishwasher. We might glance at the Telegraph or the Independent (so much better than ITV or the likes of Fox FM, we think) while basking in warmth from the central heating which, Colin Batchelor will be pleased to hear, is 12 times more likely than average to be oil-fired.

An awful lot of us apparently like the place so much that we work in Upton. Home-based workers are three times the national average, while agricultural workers are five times more numerous here, though that still makes them only 10% of the total. And when not toiling in the spare bedroom or in the fields, we'll relax at archaeological sites, stately homes and art gallery — or perhaps in the greenhouse (twice as many in Acorn Type 2 places). Chris at the George & Dragon will be pleased to hear that rates of visiting pubs are above average, and he may confirm that we drink more ale than lager.

'What a load of rubbish' is probably a polite summary of your reaction to all this sort of stuff, and you'd be quite right. Should you ever open any of the junk mail that the poor postman has to lug around you may find it's all aimed at the lifestyle of the mythical Acorn Type 2-er. But perhaps they bombard us with so much marketing that we succumb to the tempting offers, and the marketer's theories become self-fulfilling. Who knows? They do!

From your County and District Councillor

The secrecy of the ballot means that I will never know for certain who voted for me in the recent County Council elections, and I am unable to thank them personally. If you were one of them, please accept this as a heartfelt and personal thank you. Also, I would particularly like to thank those who helped me or offered me encouragement during the campaign. I was invariably greeted in a most friendly and courteous way in Upton, by people of all political persuasions. With an electorate of 5,700 people, it was not possible to make contact with everybody, although I did call at most houses in the ward. If I missed you, or you were out, I would be happy to call again if you would like to discuss any issue.

Now that the election is out of the way, I look forward to helping anybody who lives in Upton with a Council problem, whether District or County. This applies equally to those who voted for me, those who voted for one of the other candidates, and those who, for one reason or another, did not make it to the polls. I can usually arrange a meeting at reasonably short notice and can be contacted on 850275.
